Systems Analysis and Readiness Assessment

The Ute Mountain Ute Tribe has developed a coordinated system of care and has the capacity and readiness to integrate the Native Connections suicide prevention program for youth ages 0–24 into its Tiwahe Tour de Ute – A Journey of Wellness program.

BACKGROUND

As part of the President's commitment to protect and promote the development of prosperous and resilient tribal communities, the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) received funding in Fiscal Years 2015 (FY15) – 2020 (FY20) to support and implement a program called the Tiwahe Initiative. Tiwahe (ti wah-hay) means family in the Lakota language and symbolizes the interconnectedness of all living things and one's personal responsibility to honor family, community, and the environment. In 2015, the BIA offered four (4) tribal communities an opportunity to participate in the Tiwahe Initiative. Each Tiwahe Initiative tribal site was given the financial and administrative resources to develop a coordinated service delivery model centered on the needs of the family and community. The Ute Mountain Ute Tribe was selected to participate. Between 2015 and 2019 two additional Tribes were selected to participate.

The Tiwahe Initiative provided the Tribe additional funding to be used for social services and Indian Child Welfare Act (ICWA) purposes, as well as funding to plan, develop and implement a model program that would lead to self-determination. The following timeline and activities were conducted:

2015 – 2016 Planning

2017 – 2018 Development

2019 – 2020 Implementation and Planning for SAMHSA Native Connections

In 2019, the UMUT held a one-day systems design workshop that produced this Community Resource Directory. The focus of the systems design workshop was to further develop systems, processes and technology. As shown in the diagram Integrated System of Care Diagram, the Tiwahe Tour de Ute Office is the One Stop Center for all services to be coordinated. A data management system is being developed by Tribal D to track client services and outcomes. The Tiwahe Tour de Ute Coordinated System of Care contains 3 basic constraints:

- The system has structure and behavior which is designed to achieve a predefined objective that aligns with the goal of Tiwahe to improve the quality of life for all children, youth and families on the UMUT reservation.
- Interconnectivity and interdependence exist among the system components and each grant program and community service uses a common framework with common measure to promote systems integration and success.
- The objectives of Tiwahe Tour de Ute have a higher priority than the objectives of its subsystems.
